Preliminary Note: (1) Applicant's drawing corrections submitted March 4, 2004 are acceptable. (2) A copy of the signed form PTO 1449 deriving from applicant's information disclosure statement of November 6, 2002 is enclosed herewith.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-2 and 4-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tognazzini (U.S. Patent 6,600,713).

Claim 1: Tognazzini discloses a compact disk having read only areas (101) and read/write areas (102, 103). The read/write area can include a serial number (col. 5, lines 48-60) that read as "file management information".

Claim 2: The serial number on the disk as readable as both "volume configuration information" and "file configuration information". The serial number uniquely identifies the disk (col. 5, line 56), and thus serves as "volume configuration information". The serial number also identifies user input information (col. 6, lines 20-27), and thus also reads as "file configuration information".

Claim 4: Col. 4, line 60 through col. 5, line 3 describe the system as an optical disk having at least two recordable surfaces. The read/write surface exists on two of the surfaces.

Claim 5: The optical disk includes read only surfaces and read/write surfaces, both of which are irradiated by a laser beam (col. 4, line 60 through col. 5, line 3).

Art Unit: 2175

Claim 6: FIG. 3 discloses a controller which is readable as a server, and a CPU which is readable as a "server information acquisition section". The read heads are the "hybrid information acquisition section". The file management information is the serial number recorded on the read/write portion of the disk. The computer program described at col. 6, lines 21-28 read as a file information comparator and file acquisition section since this program compares the serial number read by the read heads and acquires records and control information based on the serial number. The file write heads read as the "file write section" and file re-writing section" since they are capable of writing and re-writing files based on specific user actions or inputs.

Claim 7: See remarks for claim 2.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Tognazzini (U.S. Patent 6,600,713) in view of Official Notice.

Claim 3: Tognazzini teaches that the read only area may contain multiple files, such as music files, but not a single file.

However, the Examiner takes Official Notice that the skilled artisan would readily recognize that a compact disk may contain any number of files, from zero files, one file, two files, or hundreds of files, depending upon the physical limitations of the disk. Accordingly, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Tognazzini to include only a single file (such as a single song) in the read area as a user desired option which is readily recognizable by the person of ordinary skill in the art. A single file can be a "file portion" (an entire portion of the file).

Remarks

Applicant's arguments have been considered.

Applicant argues that in the Tognazzini patent, file management information is not recorded in the write area. Applicant also argues that the serial number recorded in the read/write area is not file management information.

These arguments are not correct. First, it is established at col. 5, lines 48-60 that Tognazzini does in fact have write are and that the serial number information is recorded in that area. The serial number is in fact file management information, because it used to identify a disk having files. The identification of a storage media having files is reasonably construed to be a file management activity, lacking any further details in the claims (particularly claim 1) as to what kind of file management activity is being performed.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
